OUR SLEEPING COMRADES.

espectfully Inscribed to the Members of the G.A. R BY J. ANDRE HALSTED

They have fallen, they have fallen, Where the battle tempest roared; it where the blaze of strife was gleanin On each bayonet and sword. They went down beneath the surging Of the tide of men and steeds, And we leave these simple flowers, To commemorate their deeds.

They have fallen, they have fallen, In the battles of the free, And their fame will be remembered In the ages yet to be: And upon each shaft of marble Reared o'er comrades in the fray, Heared o'er comrades in the! tands the record of their valor Where it shall remain for aye

They have fallen, they have fallen, in a high and holy cause, Finhing for our starry banner, For our country and its laws; For the giorious gifts of freedom, For the land our fathers loved, For the Hights, which, spite of sceptres Men proclaimed and God approved.

Men proclaimed and God approved. Let the flags float out above them; Let the music fill the air.— In the hearts of those who love them, it shall solo, like a prayer. Free the flags! Free the flags! That the stars, they died defending, Still may ablue upon them there. Wheeling, W. Va., May 30.

The dispatches this morning confirm the previous reports that the Archbishop of Paris, M. DARBOY, along with some tifty priests held as hostages by the Communists, were all murdered by them in cold blood. This is one of the most shocking of the many crimes that made the closing rule of the insurrection in Paris monstrous and forever infamous. Under the circumstances some account of the emment prelate may prove inter-We are indebted for the following to the Philadelphia Press :

succession he was made editor of the Moniteur Catholique, General Almoner, and Vicar General (honorary), and with the title of Inspector of the Religious Schools of the Diocese. In November, 1847, he accompanied the Archbishop to Rome, where the Pope conferred on him the title of Prothonotory Apostolic. In the next year M. Darboy was appointed Vicar General of Paris, and in 1859 Bishop of Nancy. In January, 1863, he was nominated for the Archepiscopal See of Paris, and was installed in April following.

In January, 1864, he was Almoner to the Emperor, and was called to the Senate by a decree of October, the same year. He was made a member of the Imperial Council of Public Instruction in 1866. After his elevation to the Archbishoptic of Paris, M. Darboy appeared as a moderate and conservative, in which role he did not always meet with success. His pastoral to the Ultramonary and the property of the property tanes appeared to breathe too much a rit of philosophy and toleration. In Senate his position was never that of Minister Washburhe, writing from Paris to the State Department, in a letter dated April 23, said of this act: "Such treatment of that most devout and excellent man could have but created a great sensation, particularly in the Catholic world. On Thursday night last I received a letter from Monseigneur Chige, Archbishop of Myrs and Nuncio Apustolic at St. Seige, and also a communication from M. MR. WASHIURNE'S ENDRAYORS TO SAVE HIM.

Our minister succeeded in obtaining permission to visit the Bishop, and to send him newspapers, delicacies and other little comforts. In the same letter we have quoted above he describes the personal apperance of M. Darboy. 'I then went to the Mazas prison, where I was admitted without difficulty, being usbered into one of the yeacant cells. The Archbishop was very soon brought in, and I must say I was deeply totiched at the appearance of that venerable man, with his slender person, his form somewhat bent, and his long beard, for its has not been shaved, apparently, since his inwhat bent, and his long beard, for he has not been shaved, apparently, since his imprisonment; his face haggard with ill-health—all could not have failed to have moved the most indifferent. I told him bhait taken great pleasure, at the instance of his triends, in intervening in his behalf, and, while I could not promise myself the satisfaction of seeing him released, I was very glad to be able to yist him to asceptain his wants, and to assuage the cruel-position in which he found himself. He thanked me mises heartily and cordially for the disposition I had manifested to wards him. I was charmed by his cheering spirit and interesting conversation.

prison—a wooden chair, a small wooden table, and a prison bed. The cell is lit by one small window. As a political release ne small window. As a political prison-r, he is permitted to have his food brought o him from outside the prison, and in anligence of passing events. I shall apply to the prefect of police to be allowed to send him newspapers and other reading matter, and shall also avail myself of the permission granted to visit him, to the end that I may afford him any proper as-sistance in my power. I cannot conceal from myself, however, the great danger he is in, and I sincerely hope that I may be instrumental in saving him from the fate which seems to there as him?

which seems to threaten him."

M. Darboy was justly celebrated in the walks of ecclesiastical literature. He was a voluminous and forcible writer. Among his numerous publications may be cited a translation, with introduction and notes, of "The Works of St. Denis, the notes, of "The Works of St. Denis, the Arcopagite," in 1845; in 1848 and 1849, "The Women of the Bible," which passed through five editions; in 1850, the "Women Saints," which passed through several editions; and in 1852, a translation of "The Imitation of Christ," which passed through twelve editions. He also engaged in several controversics with the Abbe Cambalot on the ecclesiastical hierarchy. Ha also published several brochures, both anonymously, over his brochures, both anonymously, over his initials of G. B., and publicly. He also edited a "Life of St. Thomas A Becket," and engaged in many congenial tasks in literature. over his "For This Relief Much Thanks."

The days of Apache rule are numbered. The cry of the suffering Arizonans has at last been heard in Washington. They have moved in the right place and Gov-ernment has heeded them. From the magnates in San Francisco they got little sympathy. Complaints against Stoneman met with slight favor at Division Headquarters. If he was farming at the public cost, there was a precedent for it. On the largest island in our harbor a post is kept up at great expense for no other is kept up at great expense for no other apparent purpose than to give its Commander a free stock range. Sheep and cattle roam over its hills, soldiers herd them, and a steamer plies for their service. While this is permitted, may encouraged within sight of its headquarters, with what grace could Schofield object to Stoneman doing the same at his distance? But for Arizons the thing is done. Creak Stoneman doing the same at his distance? But for Arizona this thing is done. Crook succeeds Stoneman. She sees the bow of promise; not, as before, the lond-mouthed promise of a general order, brave words the prologue to file deeds, but the promise of a Soldier's name; the promise that as the man has been he will be; that he will do, not talk. If the future can be known from the past, Crook will give peace to Arizona as he did to Oregon. In him the settlers will find the Oregon. In him the settlers will find the good shepherd. The wolves, not the sheep, shall be shorn.

About this time M. Darboy having gone to Italy to assist at the eighteenth centendary of St. Peter, was charged by the Emperor to make every effort to induce the Pope to come to Paris to attend, with the other sovereigns there gathered, the Exposition Universelle. But he failed in this "dission, the Holy Father manifesting an unaccountable aversion to entering the French capital. The persistent refusal of the Pipus to bestow upon M. Darboy, the Cardinals' hat has also been understood as evidence of a want of good feeling between the two. The last appearance of the Archbishop in public was at the time of the Hyacinthe troubles. His stand at that important juncture proves his liberalism as well as attest his devotion to bis church.

I was the first man he had seen from the outside since his imprisonment, and he had not been permitted to see the newspapers, or to have any intelligence of passing events. I shall apply sheen and the grass that a number of New Englanders have demonstrated the excellent wool raising qualities of the Laramie region, and a party has just been out, mostly from Maine and vermont, who are now on their return to see the newspapers, or to have any intelligence of passing events. I shall apply sheen and the grass that has for so many sheep, and the grass that has for so many ages lurnished pasture to the buffillo and antelope, is found to be exactly fitted for them. Cattle of all kinds thrive well, but the quality of wool produced on these plains is likely to control the general stock course for a long period. These such interest for a long period. Under such an impetus the Rocky Mountain region will all be speedily occupied.

WARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

Stocks opened firm, as indicated last week. The cliques in Reading and Bock Island bid up these stocks, but after second call the entire list broke, principally on sales by bears; but as money is so easy it is expected that the buils will sgain raily the market. Western Union, Ohio, and Pittsburgh have been the weakest, stocks on the list. The market closed steady with a recovery from the extreme depression, with Reading, Rock Island and Lake Shore as the features. The Express says the sudden and unexpected in the market at about 3:30 r. s. was occasioned by the receipt of a telegram from Washington to the effect that Secretary Boutwell had decided that the New York Contral Company must pay a tax on their scrip dividend. He seemed to appreciate his critical situation, and to be prepared for the worst. He had no word of bitterness or reproach for his persecutors, but on the other hand remarked that the word judged them to be worse than they really were. He was pattently awaiting the logic of events, and praying that Providence might find a solution to these terrible troubles without the further shedding of human blood."
